November 2018

What's Happening:

The children have been hard at "work" which is what you may have read in the Daily Routine book as planning, work and review times. This is where the children plan out what they would like to work on and in which area. We then review after clean-up time and they can share with the group or with me what they did accomplish. It has been an exciting process to watch them go through. I am looking forward to sharing their progress during conferences on Thursday November 8th. This next month is full of Fall Fun and Being Thankful. I am truly thankful for the opportunity to work with your children!

Special Note:

Please have your child collect some Fall items and bring them in on Nov. 5th Monday. This would be a great time to take a nature hike whether it is in your backyard, at a park or up north it could be fun for everyone! Example items: leaves, pinecones, sticks or whatever your child finds interesting.

I would like to share with you a very difficult and sad decision that was recently made. Ms. Savannah will no longer be with us in our classroom. We have attempted to enroll more children into the program and have been unsuccessful. At this time, we have not met the required number of children for an assistant teacher.
